25X1 1. Krizari activities, although still in progress in all parts of Croatia, in parts of Slovenia, and in southern Slavonia, appear to be characterized by defective military organization. Operations are conducted by isolated groups, but there is little unified effort or coordinated leadership. Some of the group leaders, by their high-handed methods or desire for personal gain, have made themselves thoroughly unpopular, as for example, Jure Cirilich, leader of the Moslavina group, known for his requisitioning, stealing, and poor military leadership.

2. Groups are known to be operating in the following areas:

Bilo Gora Small group, mostly Ustashi, active principally around Djurdjevac and Pedravski Klostar.

Prugevac	Believed to be allied with above group. Led by a popular
Dinievac	former Ustashi NCO.

Sirova Katalena

Grubisno Polje Small group, not well led.

Moslavina Fairly large and active group.

Zagerje Sizeable Krizari activities. Men wear both civilian clothes and uniforms. UDRA has made reprisals against the populace.

Zagrebacka Gora Small groups active in this area.
Kalmik

Veli Trgoviste Krapina Krizari have captured and killed Party leaders and other officials. In retaliation, UDBA Zagreb has killed five people for each official killed

Stajerske Similar resistance activities
along Setla River

3. Chetnik activities are not widespread in Croatia, but some have been noted in Macva and in the vicinity of Sabac and Valjevo.

5. Recent Krizari activities:

- (a) An explosion occurred in January in the Gaon factory in Zagreb, manufacturers of knitted products. The factory was almost completely demolished, and nine persons were killed, including Mr. Gaon, the former owner. All Gaon workers and employees have been arrested and are in jail.
- (b) Minor explosions also occurred about the same time in the factories: Hinko, Frank I Sinovi, coffee substitute manufacturers, and Siemens, electrical products. Little damage resulted in either instance.
- (c) UDBA surprised nine men who were trying to mine the Ivancica textile factory in Zabok. In the ensuing skirmish, six UDBA agents and nine militiamen were killed; two Krizari were killed and seven others wounded and taken prisoner.

25X1 6. In general, [redacted] resistance to the Regime is organizationally at a low ebb but is by no means dead. Despite the fact that the Regime is trying to consolidate itself in all directions, very serious disturbances could be set off if any indication of outside assistance appeared.
